SUPER HEAVY DUTY GATIC LIFTER

Strength and durability

Built to last a lifetime

plumtool

HEAVY DUTY
LONG HANDLE
GATIC LIFTER

$327⁷¹ INC. GST

Code: 4501

- The Plumtool Lifter comes with two high tensile lifting bolts to help crack the seal on the lids.
- The bottom plate is made from 20mm steel and will not bend.

Ever had trouble lifting a Gatic lid?

Lifting a Gatic cover that has been in place for years can be a real problem. Armed with the right tools and some "know how" the job can be made easier.

First remove any built up dirt from the key hole. Some lids have plastic plugs, simply pull them out.

Drive the new Plumtool Gatic Wedge between outer frame and the cover. This will crack the rust seal. For best results use 4 wedges and leave the wedges in place until the cover is lifted.

Spray the newly formed crack liberally with a lube spray. This will penetrate the rust and aid with the lifting process.

With the seal cracked, you can fit the gatic lifter into place. It's as simple as fitting the key into the lid.

Lower the yoke over the handle of the lifter and then tighten the lock nut down.

Put a wedge under the bolt to make allowance for any uneven surface around the lid. This also stops the bolts from screwing into the concrete and increases the lifting pressure on the lid.

Now tighten the bolts with a shifter.

When you apply some pressure to the gatic lifter handle, you'll see the lid break free. Job done.

HAVE YOUR SAY!

Rod Liefman Big outlets like Bunnings have been getting away with this BS since the early 80's. One store i went into way back when, had 'handyman' brochures showing how to lay steel roofing & guttering - did not comply with AS standards. The same manufacturer also had 'trades' brochures showing correct to AS standards. A complaint from me to the State licensing authority went nowhere! I believe in some states it is now legal for home owners to rewasher their own taps plus other minor jobs!

Bunnings at it again! Has any company done more to undermine licensed trades?

Shaun Pratt why cant Bunnings be fined for promoting illegal works ?

Like · Reply · Message · 3w

Damien Porter What's illegal about changing a washer or unclogging a drain? It's a tad concerning that you don't know the legalities of your own trade.

Like · Reply · Message · 3w

Shaun Pratt Damien Porter we are told undertaking any plumbing works with out a registration or a license is illegal hence why we are charged exorbitant fees to be plumbers as well as undertaking years of training . Many people who are caught doing plumbing works are prosecuted you just don't here about it .

Ben Nolan Great! I licensed plumber does 5 years of study, 2 years is at nights after working all day and many likely to have a young family awaiting them!! Shame shame shame
